

Assignment China: Join Mike Chinoy for a screening and discussion of the documentary on China, “Follow the Money”

Time: Tuesday, Feb. 16th, 2016, 3-5:00 pm

Location: Skiles Classroom Bldg., room 002, Georgia Tech Campus near the Price Gilbert Memorial Library; Visitors parking is available on North Avenue or at the Student Center (Ferst Drive).

Map: <http://www.map.gatech.edu/pdf/Campus-Map.pdf>; Free and open to the public.

“Follow the Money” China’s economic rise had been the dominant narrative of the country for two decades. Yet with wealth came corruption and secret deals that enriched the country's top leaders and their families. Assignment China: Follow the Money is a documentary film that tells the riveting behind-the-scenes story of how two American news organizations documented the immense yet hidden fortunes accumulated by the relatives of Xi Jinping, soon to be China’s top leader, and Wen Jiabao, the outgoing prime minister - and the controversies, threats, and intimidation of the Western media which followed.

Mike Chinoy was CNN's Senior Asia Correspondent and served as a foreign correspondent for more than thirty years. After joining CNN at its London bureau in 1983, Chinoy served as Beijing Bureau Chief from 1987 to 1995. He was also Hong Kong Bureau Chief for five years. He is currently Senior Fellow at the U.S.-China Institute, University of Southern California.

Organized by the China Research Center and the School of Literature, Media & Communication at Georgia Tech

ASSIGNMENT: CHINA

Georgia Tech School of Literature, Media, and Communication
Ivan Allen College of Liberal Arts

CHINA RESEARCH CENTER

www.chinacenter.net